

WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS 2005

MOSCOW, RUSSIA

Compulsory Dance - March 15th, 2005

Massimo Scali: My skates didn't arrive until Sunday night. It is really strange that we lost the skates because it was a direct flight (from Milan) to Moscow and it was difficult to lose the bag but it happened anyway. We only missed one day of practice so it didn't really matter. Maybe it was better this way because we got some more rest. We have been working hard since (the Europeans in) Torino so everything is OK. We are happy with how we skated today, and the placement is OK too at this phase of the competition. The competition is not over yet so it's OK.

Original Dance - March 17th, 2005

Massimo Scali: We felt very confident today, we showed a very good, powerful program. We liked this OD, this kind of program a lot, we enjoy to skate to powerful music in general. It's sad to leave this OD. Now we are looking forward to show our free program tomorrow which will be a completely different style. And we hope to skate as good as we can again.

Free Dance - March 18th, 2005

Massimo Scali: We're very happy with this competition. We skated very well. It's the end of the season, and everyone is tired, but we did the best competition of the season.
(On having performed their Free Dance for the last time) It's a bit sad. We found something special with this program. It was my favourite program and it's sad to leave. We're very close to it. But we might keep it as an exhibition number.
